I Love to hear the neighing of my hens, At early morn when smoking at my ease; And I adore the roaring of my wrens Haunting the boughs of my ailanthus trees. T is sweet to hear the cackling of my cats, As o er the roof they indolently pass, And I revere the purring of the bats Attracted by the radiance of the gas. T is sweet to hear the buzzing of the goats And the shrill clucking of my favorite mare, While all my doves and linnets in their cotes Fill with loud trumpet-snorts the evening air. I dote upon the screaming of my sheep, And the fierce hissing of my English pups, And all the fibres in my body leap When my old jackass whistles as he sups. My spirit loves the braying of the owls; I...
